Reciprocity and Press Day at Women's Club Provides Fine Meeting for Large Gathering

By PHOEBE MILBURN

Reciprocity and Press Day was observed at the Women's Club Wednesday. At noon a delicious luncheon was served by the members of the A-11 committee, 125 members and guests of the club being seated at the table.

Place cards were provided for the visitors and their special hostesses. These were cards with small typewriters for decorations, the guests' names being typed to carry out the press motif.

The tables were arranged in the shape of a triangle, a beautiful basket of orchid waissonias being placed in the open space. Bouquets of doublestocks and snapdragons formed the centerpieces.

The stage was also decorated with baskets of waissonias, and the fireplace in the lobby was banked with waissonias, stocks and snapdragons.

After the luncheon the guests and as many of the club members as wished, were taken on a drive through Torrance, out through Lomita, over the Palos Verdes Hills, and back to the clubhouse through the C.-C. M. O. oil fields.

During the luncheon Richard Sinclair, winner of the oratorical contest at the high school, gave his oration on the Constitution, which delighted those present both by the text and the manner of delivery.

The program of the afternoon began with three skits from the play "Amazon Isle," to be given Saturday night at the high school.

Blanche Friend Austin of the Redondo Breeze was introduced by Mrs. Milburn, press chairman. Mrs. Austin had chosen for her subject "Publicity, All Dressed Up and No Place to Go."

Mrs. Austin said that the general public was not interested in general publicity. She said, in part: "Plain facts do not hold attention. They must be dressed up. Words can paint beautiful pictures. There is much poor writing because we do not know how to do the better kind of writing. There is a beauty in words, if we can only find it. Any fool can find fault, but it takes a wise man to find beauty."

In Mrs. Austin's point of view nothing has happened that is not in the paper. People do too much talking; rumors reach a newspaper office that are wildly exciting, but when traced to their source amount to nothing. "Newspapers must be honest," she said. "Just because some one tells something it cannot be printed until it has been found to be the truth."

Instead of schools of better journalism, we should have schools for better readers, so that the latest piece of scandal would not be read with greater interest than the important news of the world.

"No matter how careful the reporter and the editor may be, many things go wrong on a paper that can never be explained. Little things that escape the proofreader in the hurry at the last moment in getting a paper out."

The second speaker on the program, Miss Una Fowler of Los Angeles a teacher in the Manual Arts High School, took the audience on a trip through Italy.

Miss Fowler had about a dozen paintings of different places in Italy with her; also specimens of the handwork of the Italians in carved leather and scarfs.

Miss Adelaide Erickson, soprano, of Los Angeles, who came with Miss Fowler, sang several Italian selections. Miss Madeline Clark accompanied her. Miss Clark also is one of Miss Fowler's pupils.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Maher, Mrs. Sault and Mrs. Eubanks, of Wilmington; Mrs. Cooke and Mrs. Mobarry, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Wright and her press chairman, El Monte; Mrs. Harris and her press chairman, Gardena; Mrs. Edgerton and Mrs. Carr, Beverly Hills; Mrs. McPhee and Mrs. Clark, Inglewood; Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Humphrey, San
